

SCHOOL CADETS ARE REVIEWED

Eleven Hundred Young Soldiers in Annual Parade on White House Ellipse.

VAST CROWD WATCHES

Brig. Gen. M. M. Macomb, of War College, Views Drill as Representative of Secretary Baker.

Eleven hundred high school cadets yesterday at the Ellipse demonstrated their preparedness and adaptability to military evolutions when passing in review before Brig. Gen. M. M. Macomb, president of the War College, General Staff officers of the United States army, members of the Board of Education, and other officials. Secretary of War Baker was prevented from reviewing the cadets, but designated Brig. Gen. Macomb to act in his place. Other officers with Gen. Macomb were Maj. Andrew Moore, of the General Staff; Capt. Monroe C. Keith, General Staff; Maj. W. A. McCathran, military instructor to the cadets; Commissioner Oliver P. Newman, Capt. James F. Oyater, former president of the Board of Education; Henry P. Blair, president of the Board of Education; E. B. Kramm, assistant superintendent of schools, and E. L. Thurston, superintendent of schools. Cadet officers with Gen. Macomb were Brig. Adj. W. H. Know, Brig. Qtr. R. L. White, and Col. J. H. Fellows.

Preceding the grand review, the eight hundred companies of the cadets, forming two regiments, performed series of exhibition drills for the benefit of the several thousand persons who gathered at the Ellipse for the annual school event. The music for the drills was furnished by the full Marine Band.

The entire Ellipse was roped in to prevent the onlookers from crowding onto the field and interfering with the rapid movement of the troops. Cheers burst from the throats of the great crowd that had assembled when the cadets swung in through the western entrance shortly after 4 o'clock.

One of the most interested of the spectators occupying reserved chairs was Gen. Barnett, head of the United States Marine Corps. Gen. Barnett was accompanied by his aides.

Scores of photographers and a corps of moving picture men tramped around the field with the cadets, registering the various drills and intricate evolutions.

Values that Leave No Doubt As to the Economical Buying That May be Practiced Here Today---Remnant Day
